

Source: Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System

Heavy drinking is defined as having more than two drinks per day for men, or more than one drink per day for women.

The Alaska Behavioral Risk Factor Surveillance System (BRFSS) assesses the prevalence of diseases and risk factors (indicators) in adults (individuals of 18 years of age and older) statewide through an on-going telephone survey.